The Story of Jacob and Esau

Isaac had two sons who were , but they were very different. Esau  was hairy and a hunter. Jacob  was plain and liked to stay in the . Because  was older, he had the birthright—the best of his father's . One day,  was out hunting.  was by the , making a  of red .  was very hungry and about to faint.  came back to the , and asked  for some .  asked for 's birthright in trade.  said, “I am about to die anyway. What good is a birthright to me?” He very foolishly traded his father's  for a  of  !

Who Has What?

At the end of the story, who had the birthright and who had the pot of stew? Draw a line to show who has what.

Esau

A Bad Trade

Esau traded something very good for something not as good. Circle the most important things and cross out those that would be a bad trade!

Memory Verse

Gen. 25:23—One people shall be stronger than the other, and the older shall serve the younger.
